

Australian Mammalogy

Contents

Volume 31

Issue 2

2009

Research Articles

Using the diet of the barn owl (Tyto alba) as an indicator of small vertebrate abundance in the Channel Country, south-western Queensland

Matthew C. McDowell and Graham C. Medlin 75–80

Conservation of the false water rat (Xeromys myoides) depends on landscape complementation

Tanya L. Russell and Peter T. Hale 81–87

Use of fauna road-crossing structures in north-eastern New South Wales

Ian F. Hayes and Ross L. Goldingay 89–95

Fungi consumed by translocated Gilbert's potoroos (Potorous gilbertii) at two sites with contrasting vegetation, south coastal Western Australia

N. L. Bougher and J. A. Friend 97–105

Measurement of defaecation rates in captive swamp wallabies (Wallabia bicolor)

Bronwyn Fancourt 107–110

Population characteristics of house mice (Mus musculus) on southern Yorke Peninsula, South Australia

Helen P. Waudby 111–115

Faecal testosterone concentrations and the acoustic behaviour of two captive male Australian fur seals

Joy S. Tripovich, Tracey L. Rogers and Geoff Dutton 117–122

Remote monitoring of the behaviour and activity of captive southern hairy-nosed wombats (Lasiorhinus latifrons)

Lindsay A. Hogan, Clive J. C. Phillips, Allan Lisle, Alan B. Horsup, Tina Janssen and Steve D. Johnston 123–135

Age of road-killed common brushtail possums (Trichosurus vulpecula) and common ringtail possums (Pseudocheirus peregrinus) in an urban environment

R. Giffney, T. Russell and J. L. Kohen 137–142

Research Notes

Fate of wild-caught Antechinus flavipes released after physiological experiments

C. E. Cooper, K. Vernes and T. Cooper 143–145

Book Reviews 147