Perchlorate and nitrate are common contaminants in groundwater, and both are biodegradable. Their biodegradation can be monitored using isotope fractionation analysis. See P. B. Hatzinger et al. (pp. 44–52).

Photo: G. Heath (CSIRO Land and Water)