

Supplementary material

Long-term migration patterns and bisexual philopatry in a benthic shark species

Nathan Charles Bass<sup>A</sup>, Johann Mourier<sup>A</sup>, Nathan A. Knott<sup>B</sup>, Joanna Day<sup>C</sup>,
Tristan Guttridge<sup>D</sup> and Culum Brown<sup>A,E</sup>

<sup>A</sup>Macquarie University, Department of Biological Sciences, North Ryde, NSW 2109, Australia.

<sup>B</sup>NSW Department of Primary Industries, Marine Ecosystems Research, 4 Woollamia Road, Huskisson, NSW 2540, Australia.

<sup>C</sup>Taronga Conservation Society Australia, Mosman, NSW 2088, Australia.

<sup>D</sup>Bimini Biological Field Station Foundation, 15 Elizabeth Drive, South Bimini, Bahamas.

<sup>E</sup>Corresponding author. Email: culum.brown@mq.edu.au

Fig. S1. Location of study sites and acoustic receivers in Jervis Bay.