Supplementary material

Rafting dispersal in a brooding southern sea star (Asteroidea: Anasterias)

Jonathan M. Waters\textsuperscript{A,C}, Tania M. King\textsuperscript{A}, Ceridwen I. Fraser\textsuperscript{B} and Chris Garden\textsuperscript{A}

\textsuperscript{A}Department of Zoology, University of Otago, 340 Great King Street, Dunedin 9016, New Zealand.

\textsuperscript{B}Fenner School of Environment and Society, Australian National University, Building 141 Linnaeus Way, Acton, ACT 2601, Australia.

\textsuperscript{C}Corresponding author. Email: jonathan.waters@otago.ac.nz

\textbf{Fig. S1.} Circle plot summarising wind data for Tiwai Point (Foveaux Strait) for the three-week period immediately prior to 6 December, 2011. The period was characterised by consistent westerly breezes, facilitating eastward dispersal of Durvillaea adrift in Foveaux Strait.