

CONTENTS

‘Conservation Oceania style: highlighting Oceania’s unique approaches to conservation’ special issue

EDITORIAL

Thinking globally, acting locally – conservation lessons from Oceania

V. M. Adams, R. E. Spindler and R. T. Kingsford

85

HABITAT LOSS AND DEGRADATION

Empowering citizens to effect change – a case study of zoo-based community conservation

E. Dunstan, B. Fairbrother and M. Van Sluys

90

Biodiversity conservation in Sydney Harbour

J. L. Banks, P. Hutchings, B. Curley, L. Hedge, B. Creese and E. Johnston

98

Conservation Science Statement. The demise of New Zealand’s freshwater flora and fauna: a forgotten treasure

E. S. Weeks, R. G. Death, K. Foote, R. Anderson-Lederer, M. K. Joy and P. Boyce

110

Australia’s wetlands – learning from the past to manage for the future

G. Bino, R. T. Kingsford and K. Brandis

116

Deforestation in Australia: drivers, trends and policy responses

M. Evans

130

OVER EXPLOITATION

The context and potential sustainability of traditional terrestrial periodic tambu areas: insights from Manus Island, Papua New Guinea

N. Whitmore, J. Lamaris, W. Takendu, D. Charles, T. Chuwek, B. Mohe, L. Kanau and S. Pe-eu

151

Limitations of biophysical habitats as biodiversity surrogates in the Hauraki Gulf Marine Park

S. E. Jackson and C. J. Lundquist

159

Systematic conservation planning within a Fijian customary governance context

H. K. Wendt, R. Weeks, J. Comley and W. Aalbersberg

173

INVASIVE SPECIES

Emerging threats to biosecurity in Australasia: the need for an integrated management strategy

M. J. Lott and K. Rose

182

Approaches to strategic risk analysis and management of invasive plants: lessons learned from managing gamba grass in northern Australia

V. M. Adams and S. A. Setterfield

189