Supplementary Material

Pump my wetland: potential benefits of using water pumps fitted with large-mesh screens to conserve anurans in regulated floodplain environments

Damian R. MichaelA,*, Gilad BinoB, Anthony ConallinC, James MaguireC, and Skye WassensD

AGulbali Institute for Agriculture, Water and Environment, Charles Sturt University, Albury, NSW 2640, Australia.

BCentre for Ecosystem Science, School of Biological, Earth & Environmental Sciences, University of New South Wales, Sydney, NSW 2052, Australia.

CDepartment of Planning, Industry and Environment (Environment, Energy and Science), Albury, NSW 2640, Australia.

DSchool of Agricultural, Environmental and Veterinary Sciences, Charles Sturt University, Albury NSW 2640, Australia.

*Correspondence to: Damian R. Michael Gulbali Institute for Agriculture, Water and Environment, Charles Sturt University, Albury, NSW 2640, Australia Email: dmichael@csu.edu.au
Fig. S1. Developed models of water depths as a function of days since last commence-to-fill (CTF) used to predict water depth between 2010 and 2012 and in Sunshower Lagoon following logger failure during the 2019–20 surveys.