Supplementary Material: Reproduction, Fertility and Development

Supplementary Material

IVM of mouse fully grown germinal vesicle oocytes upon a feeder layer of selected cumulus cells enhances their developmental competence

Federica Cavalera¹, Milena Simovic², Mario Zanoni¹, Valeria Merico¹, Silvia Garagna³, and Maurizio Zuccotti³

¹Laboratorio di Biologia dello Sviluppo, Dipartimento di Biologia e Biotecnologie ‘Lazzaro Spallanzani’, University of Pavia, Via Ferrata, 9, 27100 Pavia, Italy.

²German Cancer Research Center, Im Neuenheimer Feld 280, Heidelberg 69120, Germany.

³Corresponding authors. Email: silvia.garagna@unipv.it; maurizio.zuccotti@unipv.it
Fig. S1. Z-stack images of the Cumulus-Oocyte-Complexes enclosing Surrounded Nucleolus (SN) or Not Surrounded Nucleolus (NSN) oocytes shown in Figure 1.

Supplementary Figure 1
Supplementary Figure 2

Fig. S2. Cumulus cells feeder layer. (A) Micro-Insert 4-well (Ibidi); (B) Representative images of a feeder layer of cumulus cells isolated from Surrounded Nucleolus oocytes (FL-SN-CCs) (i, iii) and a feeder layer of cumulus cells isolated from Not Surrounded Nucleolus oocytes (FL-NSN-CCs) (ii, iv) taken under phase contrast and after Hoechst 33342 staining. Bar, 5 µm.