

> SCOPE

Papua New Guinea Medical Journal is a peer-reviewed international journal that publishes articles relevant to public health and the practice of medicine in Papua New Guinea and other countries in the South Pacific. It encourages the submission of papers on new research from scientists, clinicians and managers, especially those early in their careers, and reports of projects that demonstrate better ways of delivering care.

The journal publishes original research, reviews, clinical methods, case reports and other articles all on aspects of medicine and public health.
